LONDON (Reuters) — Britain said today it could not fight India as a result of that country's invasion of three Portuguese colonies, but announced it would ask New

Delhi for a cease-fire.

Commenting in the House of Lords on the invasion, Foreign Secretary Earl of Home said, "We shall make it quite clear that we utterly deplore this action which the Indian government has taken.

"We shall make a request to the Indian government that fighting shall cease," Lord Home added, saying the place "to bring pressure" is the United Nations Security Council.

He said Britain had told Portugal it would be impos sible for the British government to engage in hostilities against India, a fellow-member of the Commonwealth.

The invasion of the territories had raised the possi-bility of whether Britain would put into effect a nearly 600-year-old treaty of military aid to Portugal.

Home said, "the next step will depend on what the United Nations decides. The first step must be to bring the fighting to an end."

The End of Gerrymander

MR. DIEFENBAKER IS TO BE commended in one sense, and criticized in another, for his decision to place the redistribution of parliamentary seats in the hands of an Independent commission.

Certainly he must be commended for lifting this old, familiar problem out of the hands of a parliamentary committee which, as always, would be tempted to re-arrange the electoral map for purely partisan pur-

Since the early days of Confederation when Sir John A. Macdonald undertook to "hive the Grits" every government, Conservative or Liberal, has generally redistributed the constituencies for its own political advantage. Elbridge Gerry, gover-nor of Massachusetts in 1812, gave his nation the word "gerrymander but his invention was quickly imitated north of the border.

Protests against this established system are by no means new. Long ago Liberals like Senator C. G. Power advocated an independent redistribution by a non-partisan commission. Now Mr. Diefenbaker, to his credit, has accepted this re-But at the same time he is playing his own game of politics while appearing to avoid them.

By setting up a commission to redistribute the House of Commons seats he will make sure that nothing is done before the next election, unless it is postponed for a year or more, which seems unlikely. The commission will need many months at least to draw the new parliamentary map and presumably the old one will govern the 1962 poll. This is highly desirable from the government's point of view since any redistribution must reduce the representation of some provinces in Parliament—notably Saskatchewan, Diefenbaker's home ground. Not only will the government lose some seats now in its possession but it will be blamed by the affected areas, even though it is blameless, for the loss of their local members in Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker's independent commission will postpone that blame until after the election. In consequence, the new Parliament to be elected next year will not fairly represent the greatly changed population of the various provinces. It will maintain a good many rotten boroughs and leave some populous regions inadequately represented.

Barring some last-minute change in the government's timetable, Parliament truly reflecting this year's national census cannot be elected for another four or five years and by that time the popula-tion pattern will have changed The attack on the old evil of the gerrymander has begun but it will be slow.

Indians to Help Indians

QUIETLY BUT VIGOROUSLY the United States is moving to attempt solution of its Indian prob-

The goals set for the present effort are maximum Indian self-sufficiency, full participation of Indians in American life, and equal citizen-ship privileges for Indians.

These are objectives which might equally apply to Canada, where progress toward recognition of the Indian as a full citizen is under way but so gradually that it is almost imperceptible to the layman.

There are, of course, differences in detail in the Indian issue as it concerns the United States and as it concerns Canada, just as there are differences in the situation of the native in British Columbia and in certain other provinces. The underlying problem is never-theless the same. It is to make available to the Indian the privileges of equality in our society and to encourage him to improve his own position and to accept the responsibilities which our society requires of its people.

One of the techniques followed in the current United States drive to appeal to Canadians. Efforts are being made there to en-list progressive Indians, who have made the transition from relatively primitive ways to modern living, to which are more backward.

The proposal has much to commend it. The living standards of a wide disparity. Some have proved their abilities to look after their own be affairs to the point where they operate on a municipal basis within the right side of the body, and the right far removed from the disabilities of their ancestors, feasting in seasons of plenty, virtually starving when returns from the form the form the feast of the body, and the right hand portion continues as usual to direct the left side of the body. Conceivably Canadian efforts to the natives in general would benefit from the enlistment of such progressive people in improvement campaigns. They know at first hand the problems that confront Indians. And they know that, with ability and effort, many of these problems can be solved. They are in a precan be solved. They are in a pre-ferred position to show the way to their own people. The job of replacing entrenched leadership at Port Colbourne called for great effort. Great effort was expended and success was achieved.

Africans Look at the Color Bar

ABOUT 1,600 STUDENTS FROM south of the Sahara in Africa studied in the United States during the 1960-61 terms and fourfifths of them were satisfied with the educations they received, according to an Institute of International Education survey made re-cently in New York.

But the image of the United States they will take back to their homelands is much less favorable than their hosts might have hoped

The African students have encountered discriminations of different and surprising types. They have been urged, on certain occasions, to wear their native robes so they will be not mistaken for American Negroes. And, paradoxically, they have suffered from discrimination practised by American Negroes toward foreigners.

One-fifth of those studying in southern institutions established for Negroes only have made no friends at all among Negroes.

Of Katanga, the White Europeans took their stand with Moise Tshombe as their favorite. The United Nations' decision to intervene was made because Dag Hammarskjold realized that the stage was set for an armed interrinational struggle between the Soviets and West-Europeanse and in fact between blacks and whites.

Alarming Disunity

By WALTER LIPPMANN, from Washington WE have been seeing in the Katanga

In Paris, the great dissenter has been Gen. de Gaulle, and his dissent affects not only the future of Western policy in Ber-lin but also the military solidarity of the NATO alliance. In the Katanga business the United States found itself the only Western great power which was supporting the United Nations. It is a dangerous position to be in, and failure to come to terms on a cease-fire and on conciliation could have catastrophic consequences in Africa.

If anyone knows a good solution for the problem of the Congo, he will do a public service to come forward and explain it. I have never heard of such a man. When Belgium suddenly "liberated" the Congo, having done practically nothing to prepare for independence, it was obvious very quickly that the Congolese were quite incapable of maintaining law and order and of governing themselves. Indeed, there was no such thing as a Congolese nation. There was only a congeries of warring tribes.

Now I read that Dr. Gordon D. Gibson of the Smithsonian Institute has been study-ing the Herero tribes in Southwest Africa who live almost entirely on meat, fat, milk and milk products, such as butter (they eat butter by the spoonful).

On this diet, one would expect many of the people to suffer from hardening of the arteries, but so far as Dr. Gibson could find the people do not seem to be particularly, prone to this disease. They suffer mainly from tuberculosis, malaria and venereal

One reason why Dr. Gibson did not find much sign of arterial heart disease may have been that the Hereros do not tend to live as ng as we do. It will be interesting what some more medical studies of these people will show. The Masai in Africa must also be studied because they live largely on the blood of their cattle. These people are big handsome men and women much more attractive-looking and powerful than are fheir neighbors, the Kikuyu, who live largely on a vegetable diet.

Some unhappy women write begging for help because they are being waked five or six times a night by severe hot flushes. Some of these women say that the flushes cause them to jump out of bed as they are waking. The flushes bother them greatly also during the day. Some of the women giving each day one tiny pill of 0.5 mg, of stilbestrol, but when another physician heard of this, he ordered them to quit its use because, years ago, he had heard somewhere that someone had said that it could

I once read with care the paper that frightened so many thousands of my medical brethern, and it did not frighten me at all. It was a paper on cancer in mice who were given large doses of stilbestrol for long periods of time. Women take tiny doses for only a small fraction of their lifetime which is a very different matter. Actually, for 30 years or more, I have been prescrib-ing "estrogens" (ovarian hormone) for many women with flushes, and I have yet to see a case in which I thought the drug had done harm. In small dosage, it generally gives great relief. If given in overdosage (often 10 mg.), the drug can make sore, breasts, nausea and vaginal bleeding. Obviously, if any such unpleasant results appear, the dosage should be greatly reduced. A number of professors of gynecology have written that they do not fear the use of hormones for the relief of the menopause,

People keep asking if there is a cure for phlebitis in the thigh and leg—the sort of inflammation of a vein that women call a Naturally, at first, with a much swollen leg, the person has to stay quiet for a while, preferably with the foot of the bed raised. Usually, today, a drug such as dicumarol is given to lessen the tendency of the blood to clot solidly and plug up the vein. When the person gets up, he or she should wear an elestic bandage or an elastic

Usually, with the passage of time, channels form, something like the holes in a Swiss cheese, and then, as more blood gets through, the swelling of the leg will go down. A person whose job requires him to stand all day may have to change his occupa-tion in order to get by.

COUNCIL RULE

New Plan To Rescue Dominican

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) President Joaquin Balaguer Sunday announced a plan to reate a new state governing ouncil and said he will resign soon as hemisphere tions are removed against the Dominican Republic

The plan announced by Bala uer in a radio address was clearly intended to solve the grave national crisis that has eset this island republic since ne collapse of the Trujillo

Under the proposed pro-visional regime, Congress would be dissolved and legislative and executive powers would pass to a seven-man council headed temporarily by Balaguer. The council would paraguer. The council would remain in power until February, 1963, when a new president would be installed. General elections would be held in December, 1962.

NDP Chief, Grit Support Public Campaign Funds

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) - Two topel spokesmen of the Liberal and New Democratic parties said Sunday they support the idea of financing election cam-paigns from the public purse.

T. C. Douglas, national leader of the NDP, expressed doubts, however, that a suit-

"Nobody who holds office or hopes to hold office can ignore his benefactors." he said. Mr. Pickersgill, member of Parliament for Bonavista-Twil-lingate, said labor has had "tre-

Reds Jibe At Split In NATO

MOSCOW (AP) - Th viet press Sunday gloated er the disputes within the NATO alliance disclosed at its session in Paris last week.

But commentators asserted that many of the disputes were deliberately stirred by NATO military leaders so that an atmosphere of crisis would give them an excuse for stepped-up war plans.

That was the view of Georgi
Ratiani writing in Pravda. "The diplomatic arguments in the West cannot hide the essence of the North Atlantic bloc as an instrument of pre paration for war and aggres sion," he wrote in the Com

FEATURE SPLIT All papers featured the split among the NATO Allies on The Congo question and French refusal to support negotiations with the Soviet Union on Berlin.

They also saw the Paris meeting as one more step in West German efforts to gain control over the alliance.
The reason for The Conge

MONTE ROBERTS

One of the loyal constituents was in the office the other day, giving me some much appreciated background on a story which interested me.

we were chatting, the telephone went "brrp, (it "brrps" twice for me, once for my deskmate, t cause I am twice as old as my deskmate), so I said "Excuse, please," and answered the phone.

It was only four or five minutes later that I hung up, the phone, and said "Sorry" to the loyal constituent who was visiting me in the office.

was visiting me in the office.

Said he: "It is a strange thing about the telephone. It seems to take precedence over everything.

"Here am I," he said, "doing the best I can for you. And while we are talking, does your desk mate interrupt us? Does your boss interrupt us? Does the office boy in-

'No," said the loyal constituent, "but when the phone rings, does IT interrupt us?

"Yes," he answered himself.

"Well, gee, I'm sorry," I said. "But the phone was ringing, and it might be important, and ."
"Granted," said the loyal constituent. "On the other hand, had you been talking on the telephone when I came up to your desk, would you have said 'Excuse, please,' and hung up the phone to talk with me?"

It is obvious the loyal constituent has a point.

The telephone is a most demanding instrument. It governs the lives of modern men beyond all conscience. Have you, for instance, the courage to let a telephone ring in the middle of the night, even if you are mortally sure it is nothing but a wrong number?

When you have guests in your home, and the conversa-tion is bright and interesting, don't you break it up the second the phone rings

The loyal constituent who brought this to my attention

inspired me to start another crusade A crusade to put the telephone in its proper place, to make it a servant instead of a master.

Now, here's what we should do . . . oh, excuse, please, there goes the phone.

BUT PLEASE STOP

Thank You, Thank You!

Santa Claus got stuck on a mud flat Saturday night as the wind got the best Karlac from Bellingham, Wash, on annual Christmas goodwill trip through the Islands of the Gulf of Georgia, was blown ashore in Ganges harbor. Sait Spring Island, by 70 miles an hour winds that caused havoc in the area and on southern Vancouver Island and the lower mainland.

Vancouver Island and the lower mainland.

The boat with a lighted Christmas tree on its mast was chartered by the Bellingham Junior Chamber of Commerce for the trip to Canadian and United States islands of the gulf.

Aboard her was a Santa Claus and Chamber officials who had presents for some of the island residents.

An RCMP boat could not dislodge her and officials said she would have to wait for high tide Sunday morning.

Yes, Santa Claus is out there on the mud flat," said a telephone operator.

Santa was finally brought ashore by RCMP launch, too late for the more than 100 youngsters who had waited patiently for him since 5 p.m.

BEHIND

Norman Cribbens, a British import who is as firmly Canadian as the most avid native son, began his newspaper career on fabled Fleet Street as a junior reporter, with the junior reporter's usual impatience and desire for the freedom of his own prose.

Firmly convinced that his "stuff" was being unduly hashed about by sub-editors, he used connections in London to find a job with the Vancouver Daily "Those were rich and colorful years in which I grew to love the majestic wonders of B.C. and its fine, friendly people. Crib will tell you. It was during this period he first came to Victoria and the Legislative Press Gallery, representing a staunchly Conservative newspaper in the days of Liberal Premier Duff Pattullo. Crib's tenure in B.C. would likely have gone uninterrupted except for the war, during which he returned to Britain with the Canadian Army. He finished up at Canadian MHQ in London, just a few strides from Fleet Street. Plans to return to B.C. were postponed when he was hired by the Canadian Press London office, from which base he operated for six years, roaming the British Isles, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany.

But he spent enough time in the CP office to learn about the great attraction of the Associated Press next door-a charming young lady named Win, with whom he fell in love and married.

In 1953, Crib became the first editor of the Canada Weekly Review, a Thomson weekly, and remained as such until 1956, when he finally carried out his resolve to return to B.C., this time with The Victoria Times.

In the past five years, his by-line has been attached to special reports from the legislature, the high courts, interviews with the great and near-great, and a twiceweekly serving of assorted oddments called, appropriately, Here and There.

Appropriately, because Norman Cribbens has been "There" and is now firmly "Here."

Why is there never a rainbow at noon?

When you give just a glance to the rainbow, it looks like a streak of dazzling colors spilled helter skelter from some heavenly paint box. A light are separated into bands closer look shows that the colors are arranged in bands and a little study shows that the bands of color are arranged in a special order. In a single rainbow, the band at the top is red. Below it is a band of shimmering orange, then a band of yellow which blends into a band of glimmering green. Then comes a band of light blue blending into a band of deep indigo blue and finally, on the inside of the bow, a band of velvety violet. SPEAR OF NATION' SETS BOMBS IN S.A.

JOHANNESBURG (AP) - South African staged widespread raids and home searches today for the perpetrators of 10 sabotage bombings Saturday night and Sunday morning.

The incidents were attributed African underground organization which seeks to fight racial segregation with dynamite blasts.

The crude blasts centred around Johannes burg and the Indian Ocean port of Port Elizabeth. They did little damage.

The bombs were set off by an organization calling itself "spear of the nation."

One of the loyal constituents was in the office the other giving me some much appreciated background on a s story which interested me.

While we were chatting, the telephone went "brrp, brrp" (it "brrps" twice for me, once for my deskmate, because I am twice as old as my deskmate), so I said "Excuse, please," and answered the phone. It was only four or five minutes later that I hung up the phone, and said "Sorry" to the loyal constituent who visiting me in the office.

Said he: "It is a strange thing about the telephone. It seems to take precedence over everything.

"Here am 1," he said, "doing the best I can for you. And while we are talking, does your desk mate interrupt us? Does your boss interrupt us? Does the office boy interrupt us?

"No," said the loyal constituent, "but when the phone rings does IT interrupt us?

rings, does IT interrupt us?
"Yes," he answered himself.

"Well, gee, I'm sorry," I said. "But the phone was ringing, and it might be important, and "Granted," said the loyal constituent. "On the other hand, had you been talking on the telephone when I came up to your desk, would you have said 'Excuse, please,' and hung up the phone to talk with me?"

It is obvious the loyal constituent has a point.

The telephone is a most demanding instrument. It governs the lives of modern men beyond all conscience. Have you, for instance, the courage to let a telephone ring in the middle of the night, even if you are mortally sure it is nothing but a wrong number?

When you have mostly

The loyal constituent who brought this to my attention has inspired me to start another crusade:

A crusade to put the telephone in its proper place, to make it a servant instead of a master.

Now, here's what we should do . . . oh, excuse, please, there goes the phone.

BUT PLEASE STOP

Thank You Thank You!

Shareholders Reject $38 Offer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shareholders in the B.C. Power Corporation today voted overwhelmingly in favor of a general distribution of about $98,000,000 of the sumpaid to the corporation in compensation for the government takeover of the B.C. Electric Company.

At a special general meeting, the shareholders voted more than 90 per cent in favor of distribution of $18.70 a share from the $111,000,000 B.C. Power received from the provincial government.

By an even great majority—more than 96 per cent—the shareholders turned down a resolution to accept the provincial government's offer to buy the corporation's shares for $38 each.

Delhi for a cease-fire.

Commenting in the House of Lords on the invasion, Foreign Secretary Earl of Home said, "We shall make it quite clear that we utterly deplore this action which the Indian government has taken.

"We shall make a request to the Indian government that fighting shall cease." Lord Home added, saying the place "to bring pressure" is the United Nations Security

He said Britain had told Portugal it would be imp the British government to engage in hostilities against India, a fellow-member of the Commonwealth.

The invasion of the territories had raised the possibility of whether Britain would put into effect a nearly 600-year-old treaty of military aid to Portugal.

Home said Britain held the Indian government respon force and effect."

As late as 1958, then Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd told the House of Commons Britain was still bound by the treaty of 1386.
